Gifted, Chosen and Sent Forth By God

In today's Gospel reading, the disciples are sent to outsiders, thus expanding its missionary range and moving into Gentile lands.

Helmut Koester has suggested that Mark created the literary genre of the gospel as an instruction in discipleship, to sustain the life of the church and to prepare it for the inevitable experience of suffering. If that be the case, then today's pericope is an explicit example of Jesus' apostolic counsel.

A sense of eschatological urgency pervade the entire text. The instruction to take nothing - not food or luggage, money or change of clothing is more than an exhortation to simplicity and asceticism. With the belief that the Messianic era was upon them, such provision for a long campaign were deemed useless and unnecessary. In addition to the eschatological atmosphere of the episode, there is a message about trusting in divine providence of the Blessed Trinity.

For Amos and the apostles, as they are called and sent, they must know who they are and who it is who called them. The true prophet, Amos, knew the Lord sent him. The apostles were sent by Jesus. They came from varied walks of life. God calls everyone no matter who they are. Will you share Jesus' message, the Good News of salvation, and go where he sends you and welcome others as you would Christ himself?

May the Lord help us to accept God's call and mission for each one of us, for God's glory and our salvation.

Have a blessed summer and an Amazing Sunday!

Daily Message from Pope Francis "The Lord offers us many opportunities to be saved and to enter through the door of salvation. This door is an occasion that can never be wasted: we don't have to give long, erudite speeches about salvation, like the man who approached Jesus in the Gospel. Rather, we have to accept the opportunity for salvation. Because at a certain moment, the master of the house will rise and shut the door, as the Gospel reminded us." ~Pope Francis
